Remote Area Programs Information for participants joining Western Deserts Expedition 2011

Preliminary Information for All Participants.

Our remote area programs will have some participants traveling in our desert equipped Landcruisers and Patrols while others will be traveling in their own vehicles. These programs provide expedition travel to some of the most remote and isolated parts of inland Australia. To safely complete the program a lot of consideration and planning goes into vehicle preparation and ensuring that we have adequate fuel, water, food and protection for a safe and enjoyable experience. To this end we need to carry only essential items and possibly forego many of the daily trappings of our normal daily life. If you are used to having a daily shower and washing in many liters of water this will not be possible for most of the program – although you should be able to shower at least once every three days. If you like many cans of drink per day or lots of fine bottled wine, this is not possible. And finally if you like a complete change of clothing each day this may not be possible either! Sounds terrible - but if you are looking forward to real adventure travel there are many alternatives to these comforts and the rewards in this part of Australia are certainly worth a few deprivations. As you know the program involves a high proportion of travel in desert that is typically dry. Although there are several known points where we can fill up with water these can be unreliable and quality cannot be guaranteed. Outback travel presents challenges beyond the norm. Sometimes we have to divert our itinerary due to flooding, track closures, Aboriginal business, mechanical or safety issues—or to witness incredible events like wildflower shows or wildlife events. You need to have a flexible attitude. The outback is a big place and you can expect some very rough travel on tracks that have no maintenance. This program is NOT suitable for people with lower back problems or people unable to withstand long periods sitting in a vehicle. You also need to be aware that there are places where prompt medical evacuation is not possible. Some areas the expedition travels through are too remote for helicopters and there are no landing strips for Flying Doctor planes. The only evacuation is by vehicle and in an emergency this can still take some days.

The expedition staff:

Your Expedition staff collectively has over 40 years of experience traveling through remote parts of Australia and has the mechanical knowledge necessary in the case of emergency. They also have remote area first aid training. They have extensive experience in leading groups in inland Australia and have a broad knowledge of landscape features so will be able to assist participants to interpret these. We carry a number of reference books and maps for inland Australia and will be responsible for participant welfare and the “learning for fun” part of the program. During travel time we maintain commentary both in the Diamantina vehicles and by radio for self drive participants. On a daily basis you will find yourself coping with a limited amount of washing water and wisely using a cloth washer – you will find that a five litre ice cream container makes an ideal wash dish. ‘Wet-ones’ have proved to be a good substitute for a quick wipe down before meals. We recommend that you bring clothing which can be washed when we do have a plentiful supply of water – we carry the buckets, you bring the soap and the line. There will occasionally be time for you to wash and dry clothes, however pack sensibly to minimise the need to. Showers can be purchased, for between $3 and $5 at towns like Kunawarritji, Newman and Forrest.

The success of any expedition relies on the group dynamic. You are likely to be travelling with people from other countries, different socio-economic backgrounds and different takes on life, politics etc. That is one of the wonderful things about humanity. If you are intolerant of other people you may need to reconsider participating, as you will be in close quarters with other people for the duration of the expedition.

Baggage

Don't you often find that when you go away you pack more gear than you really need? As this tour is an expedition, space and weight are at a premium. We emphasise that your crew will be eternally grateful if all your clothing can fit in a soft bag not weighing more than 15kgs. We request a soft bag because they are easier for us to pack. Don't bring your very best Gucci bags, just something rugged and preferably fairly airtight that you don't mind getting dusty. Ideally you should have 2 bags. One for your clothing, which is stowed and inaccessible during the day, and a SMALL day bag that you carry in the vehicle holding items that you may require while you are traveling i.e.: Camera, Binoculars, Torch Water bottle Note pad/pencil. We emphasise small as it will have to fit at your feet, on your lap or in between seats in the vehicle. There are also a few days where we stop for a shower while traveling and you will want to bring your towel and toiletries with you on these days in the vehicle. Make sure you bring spare batteries for any electronic appliance.

A great Souvenir!!

Since fossils and Aboriginal artifacts are off limits by law, and the usual assortment of tea towels and spoons are as tacky as always, you may like to bring along a packet of zip lock glad sandwich bags. Fill them with different coloured sands en route, and when you get home, layer them into a spaghetti jar. We will be visiting Aboriginal Art Centres along the way; items purchased can be shipped home, which is safer than having them bounce around in the vehicles. Major Credit cards are usually accepted.

Communication with the Outside World

Whilst some come to get away from friends and family, others like to stay in touch. To this end, we pass public phones on Days 1,3,5,9,10,11,15,17,19,20,21. If there is an emergency at home while you are away and you need to be contacted we have a satellite phone for emergencies only. The number to call is 0418561890. Messages to this phone are passed on daily. There is also mobile (Next G) access at Marble Bar, Newman, Telfer, Willuna, Leonora, and also along the Transcontinental Railway Line.

Toilet and personal hygiene

By nature deserts are dry places, and as we are traveling to the more remote desert areas, water is at a premium. Showers will be available to purchase at Kunawarrtji, Newman and Forrest. You can use a bucket of warm water when we are camped near water. Toilet is usually a shovel and a toilet roll (which we provide- with a box of matches). A tub of water and antiseptic soap is for hand washing, and the vehicles all have antiseptic hand cream pump packs in the door pockets. A good way to wash when we are in remote areas is to bring a flannel and a small container (something the size of a margarine Container) and some "soap on tap". You may also want to bring along some antiseptic cream – dry hand wash. You'd be surprised how creative you can be. We traveled with a hairdresser once who washed and conditioned her hair with one cup of water!!!!

Meals

Provisioning for a remote area desert expedition requires careful menu planning. Once we are on the road there are limited opportunities for re-provisioning. We serve modern contemporary cuisine from all over the world including Greek, Italian, Thai etc. Do not expect just meat and three vegetables. You can expect to eat very well. If you have any food allergies or dislikes you must advise us at least three weeks prior to travel. We are unable to amend the menu or make special dietary considerations once we are on the road.

Drinks

Our drinking water in camp is rainwater or potable bore water. We also provide cordial with lunch, tea and coffee in camp and a glass of table wine with dinner. If you wish to bring something else to drink please feel free. We have an icebox to store beer and soft drinks and room to store spirits. You can stock up on soft drinks at many stops en route. Alcoholic beverages should be brought with you. You can restock at Marble Bar, Newman, Willuna and Kookynie, otherwise there are no opportunities to restock en route. (The Kingoonya Pub has no take away). We find that people tend to drink more than they think they will, so err on the side of indulgence rather than temperance. Whilst this is in no way intended to suggest we encourage the consumption of alcohol, the desert climate, combined with balmy evenings under the stars is certainly conducive to a moderate tippie if you are that way inclined. Make sure the beverages you are bringing with you are stored in glass or plastic. Modern cans don't stand up to the vibration caused by corrugated roads and tend to break. For wines, ensure your boxes have large cardboard separators. Clinking bottles in the back of the vehicles will send your drivers and fellow guests nuts.

Alcohol and Aboriginal Lands

As we are traveling on Aboriginal lands during our trip, there may be a couple of camps where we will be required by law to keep the grog cupboard locked. There are heavy fines for consumption of alcohol on Aboriginal lands, so this condition must be stringently adhered to.

Photos and Aboriginal Lands

There is some sensitivity towards photography of both people and land features on Aboriginal Lands. When we arrive in Communities, please ensure your cameras are not visible. Before photographing any person, please ask for their permission. Usually they will give it quite happily, but sometimes not. Imagine people climbing over your back fence armed with cameras trying to photograph you in your backyard – same deal. Some of the areas we are traveling through are traditional lands with spiritual significance to the Traditional Owners. Permission may also need to be obtained to photograph natural features.

Accidents can happen

We are traveling into some of the most remote country in the world, and have to be well prepared. Your tour guides are trained in advanced and remote area first aid and we carry extensive first aid equipment, however we are not a mobile dispensary, nor do we carry pain killers for everyday use. We are not permitted to provide you with any medication so we recommend you bring the following. Adequate personal medication you may need Band-Aids or Elastoplasts Paracetamol or Aspirin Stingose, adequate supplies of any personal medication.

Seating

We are traveling in a convoy. You will be required to change seats every day, moving through the convoy one seat at a time, allowing all members of the expedition a chance to sit in all seats.

Camp Duties

As a member of the expedition you will be expected to assist in camp duties including washing dishes, food preparation, collecting firewood and assisting in packing and unpacking of vehicles. This is part of being a team member and will contribute to both the success of the expedition and your enjoyment.

Electronic devices

We supply limited facilities to recharge electronic devices. We do not use generators, however we have 12 volt to 240 volt invertors to charge devices with a standard Australian 240 volt power lead. We also have cigarette lighter plugs in all vehicles. Be sure to bring plenty of batteries and spare SD cards for your cameras as these are not available en route.
